Greetings from the Chairman:
The Richard Wagner Bicentennial is half over, and what a celebration it has been! Programs with the National Symphony Orchestra, Baltimore Symphony, and National Philharmonic, Saul Lilienstein’s “Verdi and Wagner,” and “Lohengrin” seminars, and talks by Barry Millington, the conductor Asher Fisch and soprano Dolora Zajick. We re-shaped the Emerging Singers Program and found a bright new star, Issachah Savage. We capped the first six months with the birthday gala at the home of the German Cultural Attaché and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Bertram von Moltke. In September the celebration continues, and we invite you to celebrate with us. Welcome to the Wagner Bicentennial, Part 2.

J. K. Holman, Chairman

While in Bayreuth I had a lengthy meeting with Ina Besser-Eichler, the CEO of the Gesellschaft der Freunde von Bayreuth (“Friends”) regarding the assignment of Festival tickets. She indicated all important policy decisions are made by a board of four representatives: The Federal Government, the Government of the Province/Land of Bavaria, the city of Bayreuth, and Friends. Last October they met to discuss the issue of ticket allocations for the Wagner Societies. With the exception of the Federal Government, all the other three groups voted in favor of such allocations, for all the reasons we all know too well. Finding itself outvoted, the Federal Government then said that it would simply withhold its funding for the Festival. While this outraged the other three groups, they had no choice but to accept the Federal Government’s implicit veto. Each of these four representatives provides an equal amount of financing/subsidy for the Festival, so losing 25% of such funding was clearly impossible.

Federal and Bavarian elections are coming up this September, and there is hope that the newly elected representatives, especially from the Federal Government, may be more sympathetic to allocating tickets for the various Wagner Societies. It is for that reason that the new board meeting of the Festival was scheduled for October, after the elections and appointment of a new board. This is the only hope for a reversal in policy regarding these allocations, and it is clearly a long shot.

I was reminded again that the previous allocation system was very unbalanced/unfair in that societies with few members received the same number of tickets as much larger ones. The greatest issue, however, was that the Wagner Societies in Germany, which comprise about half of the 180 Wagner Societies worldwide, did not receive any ticket allocations at all. This clearly needs to be corrected for allocations to resume.

In Memoriam

October 12, The Wagner Society of Washington DC honored our beloved friend, soprano Evelyn Lear, who with her husband the bass-baritone Thomas Stewart co-founded WSWDC’s Emerging Singers Program. In attendance were her daughter Bonnie Stewart and son Jan Stewart, along with grandchildren, relatives and friends. Baritone Richard Stilwell co-emceed along with Jim Holman. Attendees included Metropolitan Opera bass-baritone James Morris, Julian Wachner of The Washington Chorus, and Issachah Savage, this year’s Emerging Singers Program recipient. The memorial featured clips from some of Evelyn’s most famous roles including “Der Rosenkavalier’s” Octavian, “Marriage of Figaro,” “Lulu” and “Arabella.” The memorial ended with a clip from “La Bohème’s ‘Mi Chiamamo Mimi’”—which Evelyn sang in German. We dearly miss her leadership and dedication to emerging singers.

WAGNER IN DER WILDNIS 2013

70 members gathered at Capacon State Park, near Berkeley Springs WV, for WSWDC’s 13th annual “Wagner in der Wildnis,” this year devoted to “Siegfried.” Again, the Dream Team of concert pianist Jeffrey Swann and Prof. Simon Williams, chairman of theater and dramatic arts at UC-Santa Barbara, were the stars. Coordinated by the Society’s Lynne Lambert and Jackie Rosen, the weekend included three viewings of “Siegfried”- Act 1 from the Schenk production at the Met, Act 2 of Jossi Wieler’s Stuttgart production, and Act 3 from Copenhagen’s Belch-Holton production. A recording of the lectures is available from the WSWDC office for $45. Limited copies of “Die Walküre” (2012) and “Das Rheingold” (2011) are also available. Member Marc Nicholson is leading an initiative to create an online archive of all Wildnis recordings dating from 2007’s “Lohengrin” to the present. The subject of next year’s “Wildnis” will be “Götterdämmerung,” May 30-June 1, 2014.
This year the Society focused on the development of a single singer of exceptional promise, the Washington-based tenor Issachah Savage. To culminate his year as our Emerging Singer of 2012-2013, on June 2 he presented a solo concert at the Kennedy Center Millennium Stage, accompanied by the pianist Frank Conlon. Described by the Washington Post's music critic Anne Midgette as possessing a “world-class voice,” he has already won the first place award in the Wagner Division for both the Liederkranz Foundation competition and the Gerda Lisner Competition.

In both 2011 and 2102 he attended the Institute of Young Dramatic Voices Summer Institute in Utah, under the tutelage of the great soprano Dolora Zajick. WSWDC supported special coaching for him at the Summer Institute, year-long coaching in voice, acting, German, and physical fitness, and funds for auditions. With the Kennedy Center we secured his solo concert on June 2 at the Millennium Stage, where he sang “Rienzi’s Prayer” and selections from “Die Walküre,” “Parsifal” and “Die Meistersinger” before an audience of 200.

He has been selected as a 2013 Merola Fellow at the San Francisco Opera, where he sang on June 23 for judges including Jane Eaglen. He was one of the few called back for an encore—(he chose Wagner). He wrote from San Francisco “I am not foolish enough to think that I am receiving such attention of my own merit. It is truly the result of the Wagner Society’s sponsorship and belief in my talents. I could not have been ready to present Wagner on this level if it had not been for the investment made by the society. A big Thank You!!! I am looking forward to making you proud in the big league someday.”

Issachah sang the role of Radames in Raleigh with ecstatic reviews in May, and will sing the same role for Houston Grand Opera in October-November. You can see Issachah’s Kennedy Center performance at free video on demand—see the link on our website or go to www.kennedy-center.org/explorer/videos/?id=M5460.

The American Wagner Project and Institute for Young Dramatic Voices

The Society is delighted to announce the formation of The American Wagner Project as a division of the Institute for Young Dramatic Voices. Under the leadership of the soprano Dolora Zajick and Wagnerian soprano Luana DeVol, TAWP’s Program Director will be John Edward Niles. We will fund a German-language coach for the Institute, who will teach individual and group classes with a focus on German language skills and repertoire.

The Emerging Singers Program 2013-2014. Building on the great success the ESP had in focusing resources on one singer in 2012-13, the Society is considering a short list of candidates for 2013-2014, one of whom will receive a stipend from the Society to further his or her training and career, and a scholarship to attend the American Wagner Project.
The Wagner Bicentennial Party

On May 13, over 125 gathered for the 200th anniversary of Wagner's birthday. Under the gracious and generous patronage of Bertram von Moltke, Cultural Attaché of the German Embassy, and Mrs. Von Moltke, we had a blast! We were serenaded by a quartet of Wagner tubas, led by Jim Ross and University of Maryland brass, Jeffrey Swann and Jim Holman played a very spirited rendition of Fauré's “Memories of Bayreuth” for four hands, and John Edward Niles accompanied Jeffrey Tarr in “Hagen’s Aria” from Oscar Straus’ “The Merry Niebelungens.” Thanks to the generosity of the von Moltke’s, who provided the catering, and Guillermo and Cecelia Schultz, who provided the wine, we made a profit to help replenish the stipend for the Emerging Singers Program.

Richard Wagner would have loved the salute from four Wagner tuba players at the 200th birthday anniversary program.

Jim Ross, University of Maryland Director of Orchestral Activities (right) led the quartet.

Emerging Singers Program Updates

Brian Register (ESP 2007-8) sang the role of the drum major, to much acclaim, in English National Opera’s “Wozzack,” the role of Sigmund in Greenwich Symphony’s “Die Walküre,” and he got strong reviews in the role of Lohengrin for Savonlinna Opera, Finland.

Jennifer Wilson (ESP 2001, 2004) continues her triumphant international career. In January she sang Brünhilde in Florence’s Teatro Communale productions of “Die Walküre” and “Siegfried” opposite the ESP’s Jay Hunter Morris, under the baton of Zubin Mehta. She will sing “Nabucco” at Vienna Staatsoper in September 2013 and again in May 2014, and will sing Isolde opposite Lance Ryan in April 2014 at the Frankfurt Oper. In June 2014 she will sing “Die Frau ohne Schatten” in Leipzig. And this past August she sang a much acclaimed Irene in Bayreuth’s “Rienzi.”

Jay Hunter Morris (ESP 2001) sang Siegfried in the 2013 Metropolitan Opera’s productions of “Siegfried” and “Götterdämmerung.” In July he sang the role of Erik in Glimmerglass Opera’s “Dutchman,” and in 2014 will sing the role of Paul in Dallas Opera’s “Die tote Stadt,” and for Denver Opera’s “Carmen” he will sing the role of Don Jose. He is featured on the Met’s DVD of the 2011-12 “Ring.”
